

Sherry Ways to Teach Feng Shui Course at the Community College of The District of Columbia

Washington, DC, August 16, 2011 - Certified Feng Shui Practitioner Sherry Burton Ways will teach a class, "Feng Shui: Creating a Loving Home with Feng Shui," at the Community College of The District of Columbia (CCDC) this fall.

The course will start on Monday, October 17, and run for seven consecutive Mondays from 7 to 9 p.m. at CCDC, 801 North Capital Street NE, Room 116, Washington, DC, 20002.

Feng Shui is the ancient Chinese practice that uses the laws of heaven and earth to help improve a person's life by bringing in positive vibes. Literally translated as windwater, Feng Shui is fast becoming the mantra of the day. One of the major objectives of Feng Shui is to strike a balance in one's life, eliminating chaos and leading to calmness of mind.

"People nowadays have become conscious about Feng Shui and about bringing positive energy into their lives," says Ways, a Feng Shui expert and Principal of the DC-based décor firm, Kreative Ways & Solutions, LLC.

This course is a beginner's level course for homeowners seeking practical applications of Feng Shui. The course will provide an overview of the history, basic principles, different philosophical schools and concepts of Feng Shui. Students will have an opportunity to bring in their own floor plans to practice evaluating their personal spaces and applying Feng Shui remedies.

Register Now:

To sign up for this course, or for more information, contact Amanda Olivares at 202-274-7183 or aolivares@udc.edu or visit DC Community College Continuing Education Division http://cc.udc.edu/continuing_education. Cost of the course is $200. ($180 for Members of Think First DC or DC Live Green). This is an introductory course, not designed for Feng Shui certification. Students will earn 1.6 Continuing Education Units (CEUs).

About Sherry Burton Ways

Founder and Principal of Kreative Ways and Solutions, Sherry Burton Ways has practiced and taught Feng Shui in the Baltimore-Washington area since 2004. A recognized Feng Shui and design expert, Ways has been featured on television programs and in print media throughout the DC metropolitan area. She was selected as one of the Top 100 Designers in the Washington, D.C., region by Home & Design Magazine. Five of her designs are featured in the Home & Design Portfolio for 2011.

Ways received her training through an apprenticeship program with Baltimore-based Feng Shui Master Hope Karan Gerecht and Larry Sang's American Feng Shui Institute in California. She received additional training in Feng Shui and Redesign through the School of Graceful Lifestyles in Orlando, Florida, and Chiology Feng Shui Real Estate Staging through Inner Harmony in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Ways is also a member of the International Feng Shui Guild and sits on their national Green Living and Design Committee.

Ways is also a Certified Interior Environment Coach through the DeGangi Group in Texas. A founding member of the National Advisory Committee of the Certified Interior Environment Coaching Certification Program, Ways is the only Certified Interior Environmental Coaching service provider in the Mid-Atlantic region. This service involves coaching clients through achieving personal and professional goals, and then developing a proper environmental aesthetic most fulfilling to their lifestyle. This particular style of coaching occurs prior to seeking a design professional or performing a space-lift.

Ways is currently working on her first book, Empowering Yourself Through the Creation of Feel Good Spaces: A Holistic Guide to Making Your Home Work for You, due to be published in 2012.

For more information on Sherry Ways and Kreative Ways & Solutions, visit her website at <http://www.kreativeways.com/>.

#